Noticing the Good

Weather
Balloon RECOVERED!

Last year, Ms. Nelson's astronomy class launched a weather balloon to the edge of space. Her students worked in teams to mimic the organization of NASA and managed the entire project from the funding to the launch logistics to the science experiments inside. After the launch, they tracked the balloon and the attached payloads using a satellite tracking device.

The payloads appeared to have landed in a nature preserve in Connecticut. Ms. Nelson attempted to track it down but was unable to find it...until last week! A man in Bethany, CT emailed Ms. Nelson and notified her that he had recovered my balloon - nearly a full year after launch!!

He had been foraging for mushrooms and came across the balloon. The man lives on a farm with his wife 2 young boys and about 20 chickens!

Ms. Nelson drove to his farm on Saturday and was able to recover the weather balloon. What an adventure!!

FAMILY - SCHOOL RELATIONSHIPS SURVEY

At Roosevelt, we believe that when both family and school work together, children have a more enriching learning environment that positively impacts their academic performance and personal and social development.

Please take a few moments to complete the survey - by working together we can strengthen our school community.
