

This year the 6th Grade will have for the first time ever a running blog. The blog will contain student content only. Students will be in charge of all content that is placed on the page and will be responsible for all editing done of each other's work. We are encouraging all students to take part in this wonderful opportunity to express themselves in a manner they are not usually exposed to. Students who can run a weekly blog will earn extra credit and will be using 21st Century skills to share with their fellow classmates. Let's make our class page the most viewed site in Yonkers Public Schools.

Topics (suggestions but not limited to):

-Animals (classroom pets, your pets, a different animal a week)

-Reviews

Books/Authors

Movies

TV Shows

Video Games

Music –Songs/Albums/Artists

You Tube Channels

Any other interests you have

-Week in Review

Sports- (all sports, specific sports, specific teams)

6th Grade (key learnings)

Singin in the Rain practice

-Short Stories

- Debate Topics (school uniforms, homework in schools

-Quotes

-Interview someone (teachers, administrators, aids, or students)

Each blog should be at least a paragraph, maybe more depending on the topic. It must be updated weekly. You will pick the day of the week you want your blog to be posted. Please make sure the blogs are current. If the blog is about the weekend's football games it should go out before the next week's games start. The blog must be emailed to Mr. Kreps (bkreps@yonkerspublicschools.org) the day before you wanted posted. Students can work with one other person in either class.

Names of people in group: _____

Blog Content (be specific): _____

Day of week the blog will be published: _____