

My Final Message.....

To say goodbye for one final time is much more difficult than I thought. I do not take for granted the honor to be part of something much bigger than myself, which is something not everyone claim. The old proverb, “It takes a village to raise a child,” is really the epitome of who Saunders is. The teachers, staff, alumni, parents, and of course the students, are the sparkplug that makes this community engine work successfully. It is your dedication to the oldest trades school in New York that has put Saunders on the educational map of the nation, something everyone should be proud to be a part of.

So, as I sign off for one last time and bid you all farewell, it is with a heavy heart and an appreciative soul that I say goodbye. May you all live the best life full of health and happiness.

God Bless and God Speed
